REHENSION: (3pts)

A. Read the following text. Decide if the statements from 17 to 20 are True or False, and choose the correct answers (A, B, C or D) for the questions 21 and 22.

The struggle to have eight hours for work, eight hours for recreation, and eight hours for rest was the origin of International Workers' Day, which is also referred to as May Day or Labor Day. The celebration commemorates the Haymarket Massacre in Chicago in 1886, when Chicago police shoot workers who were striking to establish the eight-hour day. Many workers died in the event. Historically, the first congress of the Second International, which was an organization of socialist and labor parties formed in Paris on July 14, 1889, called for international demonstrations on the 1890 anniversary of the Chicago protests. In 1891, the Second International recognized May Day as an annual event. In 1904, Social Democratic Party organizations and trade unions of all countries were called on to demonstrate actively on May First to establish eight hours of work a day and to get workers' rights. Unions of all countries were urged to go on strike on May 1, wherever it is possible without injury to the workers.

Most countries celebrate International Workers' Day on May 1st, except in the United States and Canada, where Labor Day is held in September. Millions of working people and their labor unions, all over the world, organize street demonstrations and street marches. Several countries celebrate the day with parades, shows and other patriotic and labor-oriented events.

III. Reading comprehension: (1,5pts)

A. Read the following text. Decide if the statements from 23 to 26 are True or False: (1,0pt)

In the world today, particularly in the two most industrialized areas, North America and Europe, recycling is big news. People are talking about it, practicing it, and discovering new ways to be sensitive to the environment. Recycling means finding ways to use products a second time. The motto of the recycling movement is "Reduce, Reuse, Recycle". The first step is to reduce garbage. In stores, a shopper has to buy products in blister packs, boxes and expensive plastic wrappings. A hamburger from a fast-food restaurant comes in lots of packaging: usually paper, a box, and a bag. All that packaging is wasted resources. People should try to buy things that are wrapped simply, and to reuse cups and utensils.

Another way to reduce waste is to buy high-quality products. When low quality appliances break, many customers throw them away and buy new ones - a loss of more resources and more energy. For example, if a customer buys a high-quality appliance that can be easily repaired, the manufacturer receives an important message. In the same way, if a customer chooses a product with less packaging, that customer sends an important message to the manufacturers. To reduce garbage, the throwaway must stop.

The second step is to reuse. It is better to buy juices and soft drinks in returnable bottles. After customers empty the bottles, they return them to the store. The manufacturers of the drinks collect the bottles, wash them, and then fill them again. The energy that is necessary to make new bottles is saved. In some parts of the world, returning bottles for money is a common practice. In those places, the garbage dumps have relatively little glass and plastic from throwaway bottles. The third step is being environmentally sensitive is to recycle. Spent motor oil can be cleaned and used again. Aluminum cans are expensive to make. It takes the same amount of energy to make one aluminum can as it does to run a color TV set for three hours. When people collect and recycle aluminum (for new cans), they help save one of the world's precious resources.

- 17: Europe is described as one of the most industrialized areas. TRUE
 18: To reduce waste, customers should buy low-quality products. FALSE
 19: Returning bottles for the manufacturers is one of the ways to protect the environment. TRUE
 20: Aluminum cans are expensive so they can't be recycled. FALSE

B. Read the text again and choose the correct answer (A, B, C, or D): (0,5pt)

21: What does the word "sensitive" in the phrase "sensitive to the environment" mean?

- A. cautious
 B. logical

People in Beijing cannot see the sun because the air is full of smog (a mixture of smoke and fog). The smog is so thick that it blocks the sun all day. People really miss seeing the sun. Beijing's leaders decided to put giant LED screens across the city. People stand in front of the digital screens and watch the sunrise. The screen in Tiananmen Square also had a special message on it. It was a public announcement that read: "Protecting the atmosphere and environment is everyone's responsibility." The live, digital sunrise is really a hit with tourists. One from Mexico said: "It looks like science fiction. It's kind of cool, but it's also worrying." The air quality in China's cities often becomes bad in winter. People burn more coal for heating in the winter months. This causes more pollution. Many workers wore face masks on their way to work. They did not want to breathe the poisonous air. Vietnamese are lucky to have many traditional festivals as these festivals present important values. First, it creates an association and honors community strength at the village, region and country level, when the whole community is moving forward at the same time. Also, as traditional festivals usually go with a religion or belief, it helps people maintain balance between material life and spiritual life, especially with the stresses of modern life, where people are seemingly programmed to live and work. Festivals are an environment for people to go back to their roots, to learn about their origins through word of mouth, performance and their own experiences in the festival. It is a way to learn about history, which is much better than reading a textbook at school. They are living and breathing culture museums, ensuring the longevity of the country's culture. Traditional festivals are environments to nurture traditional culture.

III. Read the following text. Decide if the statements from 17 to 20 are True or False, and choose the correct answers (A, B, C or D) for the questions 21 and 22. (1.5 pts)

Ever since humans have inhabited the earth, they have made use of various forms of communication. Generally, this expression of thoughts and feeling has been in the form of oral speech. When there is a language barrier, communication is accomplished through sign language in which motions stand for letters, words and ideas. Tourists, the deaf and the mute have had to resort to this form of expression. Many of these symbols of whole words are very picturesque and exact, and can be used internationally; spelling, however, can not.

Body language transmits ideas or thought by certain actions, either intentionally or unintentionally. A wink can be a way of flirting or indicating that the party is only joking. A nod signifies approval, which shaking the head indicates a negative reaction.

Other form of nonlinguistic language can be found in Braille (a system of raised dots read with the fingertips), signal flags, Morse code, and smoke signals. Road maps and picture signs also guide, warn, and instruct people. While verbalization is the most common form of language, other systems and techniques also express human thoughts and feelings.

Answer

Over the past 600 years, English has grown from a language of few speakers to become the dominant language of international communication. English as we know it today emerged around 1350, after having incorporated many elements of French that were introduced since the Norman Invasion of 1066. Until the 1600s, English was, for the most part, spoken only in England and had not extended even as far as Wales, Scotland, or Ireland. However, during the course of the next two centuries, English began to spread around the globe as a result of exploration, trade (including slave trade), colonial and missionary work. Thus, small groups of English speakers became established and grew in various parts of the world. As these communities proliferated, English gradually became the primary language of international business, banking, and diplomacy. Currently, about 80 percent of the information stored on computer systems worldwide is in English. Two-thirds of the world's science writings is in English, and English is the main language of technology, advertising, media, international airports, and air traffic controllers. Today there are more than 700 million English users in the world, and more than half of these are non-native speakers, constituting the largest number of non-native users than any other language in the world.

The struggle to have eight hours for work, eight hours for recreation, and eight hours for rest was the origin of International Workers' Day, which is also referred to as May Day or Labor Day. The celebration commemorates the Haymarket Massacre in Chicago in 1886, when Chicago police shoot workers who were striking to establish the eight-hour day. Many workers died in the event.

Historically, the first congress of the Second International, which was an organization of socialist and labor parties formed in Paris on July 14, 1889, called for international demonstrations on the 1890 anniversary of the Chicago protests. In 1891, the Second International recognized May Day as an annual event. In 1904, Social Democratic Party organizations and trade unions of all countries were called on to demonstrate actively on May First to establish eight hours of work a day and to get workers' rights. Unions of all countries were urged to go on strike on May 1, wherever it is possible without injury to the workers.

III. Read the following text. Decide if the statements from 17 to 20 are True or False, and choose the correct answers (A, B, C or D) for the questions 21 and 22. (1.5 pts)

Renewable energy is defined as energy produced from natural sources that are replenished at a faster rate than it is consumed. Sunlight and wind are two examples of such constantly replenishing sources. Renewable energy sources are plentiful and all around us. Fossil fuels - coal, oil, and gas - on the other hand, are non-renewable resources that take hundreds of millions of years to form. Fossil fuels, when burned to produce energy, cause harmful greenhouse gas emissions, such as carbon dioxide. Renewable energy produces much fewer emissions than burning fossil fuels. Transitioning from fossil fuels, which now account for the majority of emissions, to renewable energy is key to addressing the climate crisis. Renewables are now cheaper in most countries and generate three times more jobs than fossil fuels.

17. Renewable energy sources are constantly replenishing in nature.
18. Renewable energy is produced from natural sources that are replenished at a slower rate than it is consumed.
19. Burning fossil fuels cause harmful greenhouse gas emissions.
20. Transitioning to renewable energy is not necessary to address the climate crisis.

Disastrous avalanches occur when large chunks of snow break loose from a mountainside. As it speeds downward, the mass of snow shatters like broken glass. These hazards can travel as fast as cars on a freeway, up to one hundred miles per hour. Avalanches come in many shapes and sizes. They are most common during the winter, but they do occur year-round. The highest risk period is during and immediately after a snowstorm. If caught in an avalanche, try to get off the slab. Skiers and snowboarders can head at a 45-degree angle downhill to gather speed and veer left or right out of the slide path. Snowmobilers can use the throttle to get away from danger. No escape? Reach for a tree. No tree? Swim hard. Because the human body is denser than avalanche debris, it sinks quickly. As the slide slows, clear air space to breathe. Then punch a hand skyward. Once the avalanche stops, it settles like concrete, making body movement nearly impossible. Wait—and hope—for a rescue.
